DYSPEPSIA

Is that misery experienced when suddenly made aware that you possess a diabolical arrangement called stomach. No two dyspeptics have the same predominant symptoms, but whatever form dyspepsia takes

and one thing is certain no one will remain a dyspeptic who will

Start the Liver working and all bodily ailments will disappear.

"For more than three years I suffered with Dyspepsia in its worst form. I tried several doctors, but they afforded no relief. At last I tried Dr. J. C. Zeilin's Liver Regulator, which cured me in a short time. It is a good medicine. I would not be without it."—JAMES A. ROANE, Philad., Pa.

HORRID BEDFELLOWS

TARANTULAS CRAWL ALL OVER A SLEEPING TRAVELER.

Joseph Grandelmyer, a well known mining man of Nevada, has passed through many startling experiences during a residence of twenty-eight years in the far west, but is perhaps the only man who can boast of having had a round baker's dozen of deadly tarantulas for bedfellows and surviving the terrible experience without material injury. It happened a number of years ago, but even now it causes cold shivers to chase up Mr. Grandelmyer's spinal column when his mind reverts to that particular event. However, surrounded by a circle of friends at the Palace hotel a few evenings since, he was induced to relate the incident.

"In 1864 I came to San Francisco," said the gentleman, and with the hopefulness of youth determined to make my fortune. I had a little money saved up but was a raw tenderfoot, and whatever I put my money into failed to pan out. Finally I concluded to strike out for Nevada. It was a new section of country then, that had been explored to a very limited extent, and when I made known my intention many and urgent were the requests for me to refrain from being so foolish as to encounter dangers in such a wild and almost unknown country.

"Nothing daunted, however, and not allowing myself to be dissuaded from my purpose, one day in the summer of 1864, after inducing three acquaintances to join me, I set out for the land of sage brush. My particular object in going was to better my fortune by any method I could. Two of the party were prospectors, and the fourth, a Dr. Heath, went along to spy out a good location for a hog ranch.

"Well, after crossing the Sierras at Walker's pass, we found ourselves in Owens' valley, which is now in Arizona. Dusk was approaching, and when after riding a distance in the teeth of a cold wind, we found ourselves at a deserted adobe hut by the roadside, we halted, unpacked and unsaddled our animals, and prepared to camp for the night.

"A TERRIBLE AWAKENING. "There was feed for the horses in abundance, and while one staked them out the others began preparations for supper and made the beds ready. My friend preferred sleeping under a large oak tree near, but I chose a spot adjoining the old adobe house, where I spread my blankets close to the wall where the wind would not reach me. After a hearty meal we retired to our respective beds on the ground and readily dropped off to sleep.

"I presume it was within an hour of daybreak when I awoke with a sudden start. A peculiarly dreadful feeling, worse than any nightmare, took possession of me. I felt paralyzed and was afraid to stir. There was some strange moving on my face. It was not a large object, but as it moved about the face it seemed to scorch my face. I felt the thing traverse my face from the left eye down over my nose and mouth. Then it crossed to the other side and explored in the region of my ear. The was gone.

"I knew it was not a snake gliding over my face, but some animal much smaller, though what it was I was utterly unable to conjecture. I was wide awake, of course, but such an uncomfortable horror held me fast that I was unable to move a muscle and gazed helplessly up at the stars. Once I tried to call out to my companions, but not a sound could I muster. I lay there rigid as a log, maybe for one minute, and then, when I again knew that something, or something like it, was on my hand, which rested outside the blanket, and a cold chill ran up my arm and through my whole body. Still I was absolutely powerless to move a limb, and involuntarily closed my eyes, almost expecting to feel them closed in death, so dreadful and indescribable was the sensation.

"A HORRIBLE SUSPENSE. "Next I knew it was climbing up over my throat, then to my chin and about my nose. An irresistible impulse caused me to open my right eye, and saw by the dim light the fiery eyes of a big tarantula looking into mine, with its hairy body on my face, not two inches away!

"Knowing that death, or at least painful injury might result if I moved my body, I immediately dropped the eye, and had the satisfaction of feeling the crawling spider crawl over that eye my forehead and into my hair, where I prepared a nest and finally settled down so doubt as snugly as a bug in a rug. You may think you can imagine my feelings, but you cannot. For a full half hour, I should judge, I endured all the suspense and torment that comes to most mortals in a lifetime, and allowed another spider to slowly crawl up my leg, not knowing at what time I would feel those black fangs sink into my flesh. But, thank God, that did not happen, or I should probably not now be alive. Ages after that, so it seemed, Dr. Heath arose, and, after dressing came to see if I was awake. I whispered to him the particulars of my plight, and in my hair, which had been standing on end for I don't know how long, he discovered and at once killed one of the tarantulas, an immense fellow, fully three inches long. Carefully turning back the blankets and examining me, he found twelve others that had undoubtedly sought my quarters for warmth. These he quickly but quietly dispatched in a manner not to alarm the others. When the strain was over I fainted and was delirious with brain fever for many days. Since then, you may depend upon it, I have always taken good care in the selection of a camping spot, for of all the bedfellows one can encounter one of the most terrifying is a tarantula."—San Francisco Chronicle.

How Jewish Meat Is Killed.

One of the largest abattoirs of the city of New York, covering an ample block, owned and operated by men of Jewish race and faith, is remarkable for its smooth and effective working and admirable distribution of parts. An average of 800 cattle, between three and five years old, pass through it in each of the business days of the year. Arriving from the west at the river front, they ascend one by one to the fateful inclosure, where an adept employee fastens a chain around the hind leg of each.

Hoisted by machinery, the bovine falls gently upon one shoulder, and in most instances without a cry. Occasionally, however, some brute, maddened by sight and smell of blood, breaks out into the slaughter house and creates disturbance that is speedily quelled by its own dispatch. Submissive companions, with neck twisted to expose the throat, quickly feel the shoofet's long and shining knife. The shoofet himself is a stalwart fellow, cool and wary withal, who rarely makes a useless motion. He is a religious man and of good moral character, as his license from Rabbi Jacob Joseph, chief of certain orthodox congregations in the metropolis, attests.

The life stream in torrents follows the movement of his blade. This is "shechita," the killing. It insures complete effusion of blood, in which may be germs of disease that otherwise might find entrance into human bodies. Next follows "lodigah," the examination of instrument and victim. If a nick appears on the keen edge of the knife, that by extremists is held to imply unnecessary suffering, injurious chemical change and consequent unfitness of the carcass for market. If there be none, lungs, liver and heart, the entire body, indeed, are minutely inspected.—Century.

How Money Circulates.

There would be more bills paid in this city if the people would only stop to consider how much more profitable it is for them to be concerned to keep the money in circulation.

As an example how money circulates from one man to another, although it is not often that you can keep track of a bill on its travels in this way, a Portland merchant owed $2 to a shopkeeper.

The shopkeeper called at the merchant's place of business and received a bill. A little later he used the bill to pay a debt of $2 which he owed to a laborer.

The laborer at once went and paid a debt of $2 which he owed his grocer. The grocer gave the $2 bill to a painter.

It chanced that this painter owed $1.50 to the first named shopkeeper. The painter paid the debt, and the shopkeeper discovered that the identical $2 bill which he had paid out in the morning had come back to him.

This $2 bill had paid $0.50 worth of debt, and the original holder had his money back.—Bangor (Me.) Commercial.

It Does Not Rain Always.

A Springfield gentleman who spent a summer in Europe lately, tells the story of the Scotch climate. He had been in the "land of cakes" for nearly two weeks, on a special trout fishing tour. The trout were magnificent, but the weather was awful, it rained every day and all day long. He was not easily discouraged and fished through rain, wind, and gloom. It was growing just a little monotonous by the end of the week. The natives kept prophesying sunshine day after day, but he had lost all faith in them. One day, weary up on the side of a heathery hill, where he had followed a trout stream all day, to his source, he came across a bare legged, kilted highlander, leaning with a pin and worm. "Say," said the American, "does it rain every day in this confounded country of yours?" "Oh, na, sir," said the little fellow, with a laugh, "na, indeed, sometimes it snows."—Springfield Home.

Work of the Revenue Cutter Service.

Of the 25,000 or 30,000 vessels that are every year boarded and thoroughly examined by officers of the revenue cutter service, many are found to have side lights, anchor lights or fog signals of an efficiency far below what is deemed safe by the government. These faults are corrected, and thus one of the greatest dangers of the sea, collision, is mitigated to a great degree. The benefits of increased safety thus effected are shared not only by the seafaring man, but by the public that selects our coastwise steamers as a means of conveyance from place to place. The constant patrol of the coast enables the cutters to discover and report to the proper authorities the absence or imperfection of buoys, spindles, lightships and aids to navigation.—Scribner's.

Platinum.

The demand for platinum for use in jewelry has raised its value to three-quarters that of gold. Three years ago it was worth eighty dollars a pound. It now costs $180, or eleven times more than silver. It is found in small quantities in Peru, Colombia, Brazil, the United States, California, Oregon and Mexico. The yearly output has never exceeded more than four tons and is now rising.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Number of Postal Cards Used.

Our postal cards were first issued in May, 1878, and during the first two months of their use there were 31,000,000 of them issued. During the following year 90,000,000 were used, and in 1879 the number had risen above 200,000,000. During the year 1891 we used 888,000,000. The government gets these cards made for thirty-five cents a thousand, and at the rate of thirty for a cent.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Whist Story.

The latest whist story comes from Waranganj, well authenticated. The dealer held all the trumps but the ace, and the play with the ace was so paralyzed with learning the state of affairs that he revoked and gave away the game in the deal.—New York Sun.

NEVADA BUSINESS.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY AND WEEKLY Nevada Journal, established 1869. If you want to do business in Nevada advertise in the Journal.

THE SUGAR BOUNTY.

There is much complaint about the sugar bounty business. The principle of taxing one industry to foster another is un-republican, although it is advocated by the Republican party. If sugar cannot be produced in the United States to compete in the home market with the foreign product, then, so long as we have to raise revenue at the custom houses, make it dutiable, why is it, if the assertion of partisan speakers and newspapers, that the foreign producer, not the home consumer, pays the tariff, is correct, why in the name of common sense prevent him by putting it on the free list, and taxing ourselves to pay a bounty to home sugar producers?

But the cane sugar planters of Louisiana the best sugar manufacturers of Nebraska, Utah and California and the maple sugar makers of Vermont are dissatisfied with the bounty system. They have discovered that it does not work so well as the tariff. When there was a duty on sugar they received the amounts when they sold their crops. Now they have to get the bounty out of the Treasury and it takes time to do that. The Treasury is not troubled with a surplus this year, and payments are purposely delayed, to the last possible moment. Washington correspondents say the Treasury is in distress and the sugar men have to suffer for it. A sugar producer who has good luck with his crop can clear half a cent a pound on sugar after he receives the bounty of two cents per pound. Without the bounty he is loser a cent and a half a pound, and as planters are generally borrowers, the delay in the payment causes hardship.

Why not restore the duty on sugar, especially if Cuban and Porto Rico sugar growers pay it, and relieve the depleted Treasury? It ought not to affect the price of sugar on this coast to have the tariff on it abolished as every pound of sugar refused in San Francisco for many years was admitted free of duty under the reciprocity treaty with the Hawaiian islands.

AN UNPOPULAR OFFICIAL.

Secretary Noble of the Interior Department, and Commissioner Rann of the Pension Bureau, are clashing again. Rann has the faculty of making himself disagreeable to everybody, but notwithstanding he manages to hold on to his office. Secretary Noble, who was at odds with Rann some time ago, is now so worked up that the report is current that he informed the President that he would have to choose between his resignation and the removal of Rann, and that the President told the Secretary that he would have a hard time of it. Rann has been placed in a humiliating position by the Investigating Committee. He has been forced to acknowledge that the Secretary will not permit him to make his daughter his private secretary, and that his son endeavored to make himself office broker in the Pension Bureau.

He also had to admit that he discharged several persons from the Pension Office because they gave information to newspaper reporters. He is laboring under the delusion, so prevalent among shallow-pated officials, that they own the country and that the public should know nothing about the affairs of their offices or the manner in which they are conducted.

The Congressional Committee appointed some weeks since to examine the work of the Census Bureau, finds that to complete the work outlined and entered upon, will necessitate the expenditure of $2,000,000 more. The work of the census of 1890 was not completed until 1892 and then it was valueless. An enumeration of the inhabitants, is all that the public take much interest in, and that is far from being satisfactory. In the census of 1890 Reno is not mentioned among the towns of Nevada and its population is not given in the bulletin issued by the Bureau.

News comes from Washington that the President was very angry with and attempted to read the riot act to several Republican Senators who were absent without being paired, when his protégé Judge Woods of Indiana was confirmed by a majority of one. Senator Stewart was one of the absentees and he drily remarked: "Had we been present and voted, the majority would have been the other way." Then Mr. Harrison for the first time in his life, bated himself for having said anything.

The Rothschild family has been sorely tried lately. Last Wednesday Baroness Bettine, the daughter of Baron Alphonse de Rothschild, died at Vienna, aged 32, after a long illness, and almost at the same hour Miss Louise de Rothschild, daughter of the heir of the Frankfurt branch, died at Frankfurt, aged 41. She was a charitable woman and refused to marry, as she desired to devote her whole time to assisting the poor.

The Odd Fellows' temple, soon to be built in Chicago, is to be one of the most imposing structures of its kind in the United States, and the tallest building in the world. The tower will be 550 feet high and the ground floor will cover an area of 43,000 square feet. Twenty stories of the building will be included in the main structure, while the tower will rise fourteen stories above the main building.

The customs receipts for March will reach about $17,000,000, or at the rate of $204,000,000 a year. The receipts from internal revenue during the first eight months for the current fiscal year were $100,667,293, an increase of $3,700,078 over the corresponding period of last year.

THE FISHERIES QUESTION

The United States Willing to Drop the Damage Question.

THE POSITION OF SALISBURY.

Walt Whitman Passes Away—The Emperor of Germany Will Take a Rest—Six Colored Men Drowned—Baseball Season Commences.

Behring Sea.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—When the modus vivendi was negotiated last year Salisbury said in the House of Lords, referring to the extermination of seals: "It seems to us on the whole that the proposition is a reasonable one, and we should be fully incurring the cost, not only of the United States, but of the civilized world, if by adhering too closely to any technical right we should run the risk of a destruction of this valuable industry and valuable animal." Much speculation in the Senate is caused by this change of mind by Salisbury. His ostensible reason for not favoring a renewal of the modus vivendi is that the representations of Commissioners sent to Alaska were to the effect that there is no necessity for a renewal. The real reasons are believed by a number of Senators to be a disposition to use his present position to gain concessions from the United States upon other points of the controversy, such as unsettled claims for damages to favorably impress Canada with the apparent disposition to heed her demand. It is believed that these reasons will so far influence Salisbury as to prevent the renewal of the modus vivendi on terms the same as last year, but not to determine him in effect to force him to protect sealers for actions for which he declined to assume responsibility.

The Seal Question.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The minds of a majority of the Senators have been considerably cleared of misapprehension as to the points involved in the dispute between the United States and Great Britain by discussions to executive sessions the last week. London newspapers have suggested that if the United States consented to pay damages sustained by seal vessel owners in the event of arbitrators deciding the claim of the United States is not well founded, Lord Salisbury would renew the modus vivendi. It is learned now that as far back as last June the President suggested that the liability of each government for damages inflicted upon citizens or property, be left to the decision of arbitrators.

The British Government declined to commit itself to the doctrine that it is responsible for the wrong action of persons sailing outside their jurisdiction under the British flag. The United States Government is willing to drop the question of damages but insisted that if it be considered the question submitted should also include a determination of the loss inflicted upon the United States through the illegal killing of seals by British subjects.

House Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The House today proceeded to a consideration of the pension bills reported favorably from the Committee of the Whole. After passing seventeen, public business was suspended and the colleagues of the late Congressman Spindler proceeded to pay a tribute of respect to his memory, after which the House adjourned.

The Senate and House Joint Committee today heard delegations from labor organizations in favor of Representative Stone's bill restricting immigration. Stone first addressed the committee, advocating the bill and explaining its salient points.

Mr. Everhardt, President of the Window Glass Works Association of America, urged upon the committee the necessity of changing the present law and spoke of the inadequacy of the present system of inspection, and thought it should be made aboard vessels.

O. P. Cochran, President of the United Association of Mechanics, also favored it.

Has Crossed the Dark River.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26.—Calmly and peacefully, like a child asleep, Walt Whitman passed away this evening. He has been weaker than usual for some days past and had a sinking spell last night, but recovered somewhat. Again at 4:30 this afternoon he began to sink. Dr. Alex McAllister reached the dying man's bedside, and shortly after the doctor found the aged poet in a dying condition. He asked his patient if he suffered any pain, and he whispered the answer "no." Three minutes before death he said to an attendant, "Weary Shift." They were the last words uttered by Mr. Whitman. His breathing became fainter and fainter, and at exactly 6:43 p. m. he passed away. Mr. Whitman left a carefully drawn will, but its contents will not be made public until after the funeral ceremony. The remains will be placed in a recently completed tomb in Haverleigh Cemetery in Camden, the spot selected by Mr. Whitman.

Weather Forecasts.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 26.—The forecast for Nevada is: Rain, cooler.

The Emperor Will Take a Rest.

BERLIN, March 26.—The Emperor means to give himself and Ministers a rest from parliamentary worries by the late proroguing of both the Reichstag and Landtag, the former body to be indefinitely prorogued next week.

The Landtag will be nominally prorogued until the end of October, but will be not meet again for business until the new house is elected.

The Baseball Season Opens.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 26.—The California League ball season opened here to-day with a game between Oakland and San Jose, the latter club winning by a score of 4 to 1.

About 6,000 people witnessed the game which was a lively one. Oakland outbatted San Jose, but lost the game through inferior team work.

Negroes Leaving Tennessee.

MEMPHIS, March 26.—Six hundred and fifty negroes left Memphis this morning for Oklahoma. It is expected one thousand more will leave for the same place Monday. The late lynching and the action of the colored mass meeting, in advising all who could to leave, precipitated the exodus.

Colored Men Drowned.

KEOKUK, Iowa, March 26.—Near Canton, Missouri, to-day a row boat containing eight colored men capsized in the Mississippi, and six of them were drowned.

A MATTER OF COMPLEXION.

Blond Women Said to Be Growing Scarcer, Giving Place to Brunettes. "Blond women are becoming scarcer every year," said an eminent anthropologist. "You have not lived long enough to remark the fact, but women with blue eyes and light hair are gradually passing away as a type. In each successive generation there are fewer of them than in the last. Already such a thing as a real blond, purely such, is so rarely seen in this country as to excite remark. Golden tresses are so very infrequent that real ones are usually suspected of being dyed. In short, it has become evident that before very long there will be no blond women any more."

"The same thing is true of men. Among their sex light hair and blue eyes are fast disappearing. You may judge how rapidly they are going when you consider the fact that wherever a brun man marries a blond woman or vice versa 66 per cent. of the children born have dark hair and eyes. At that rate not very many centuries will be required to wipe out the blond type altogether. You wonder how this matter has been determined with such accuracy? Simply by including such statistical observation in the census of nations. In Germany and France the very school children are examined and have their characters recorded from an anthropological standpoint.

"Observations made in this way so as to cover millions of persons of both sexes have resulted in the discovery that the dark people bring more children into the world than do the light people. Furthermore, they have greater muscular vigor and they live longer. Thus in every point which has to do with the perpetuation of a species they are superior. The rule in nature seems to be that pigment which produces the color of the hair and eyes is an indication of force. Albino among animals and pallid plants are always weak."

"After all, there are comparatively few light people in the world. All the straight haired races are dark. All the aboriginal Americans are dark, from the Arctic circle to Cape Horn. All the Asiatics are dark. All the Oceanic people are dark. All the Africans are dark, except a few blond tribes in the Barbary states. Likewise all the southern Europeans are dark. The dark people have the great advantage of being able to stand any climate, while the light complexioned races cannot endure the heat of the tropics.

"An apparent contradiction to all this is afforded by the fact that wherever the light haired and blue eyed peoples have come into conflict with races of dark complexion the latter have always been defeated. The light people govern the world today. Queen Victoria has blue eyes, and the sun never sets on her dominions. Descendants of Anglo-Saxons dominate the New World. Even South America, Africa and the civilized part of Asia are fairly run by the English and Germans. Germany leads all the nations of the earth in science and learning, and three-fourths of her population are blue eyed. The yellow haired Swedes, Danes and Norwegians furnish the sailors of the world. English is the language of the globe. French has often been called the universal language, but it is in fact merely a court language outside of France. The Chinese have a 'pidgin' English, but not a 'pidgin' French. All the modern jargons of the world, for trade purposes, are modifications of English.

"The blue eyed and light haired people are by far the most brave of the moderns. By their superior intelligence and bravery they have conquered the world, but their task in accomplishing this has implied an enormous strain upon their powers. So great a strain has not been conducive to the prolongation of their existence and to the perpetuation of their kind. Races of people are like breeds of horses and cattle, or like stocks in plants. They last for awhile, but not forever, disappearing sooner or later. If a severe strain is put upon them in one way or another, they will pass away so much the more quickly. The high culture we are giving our children, stimulating their mental activities to the utmost, has the effect of reducing the number and physical strength of their offspring, thus shortening the life of their race.

"So, owing to such causes as these, we find that the blue eyed and light haired people are diminishing in numbers at a very rapid rate. We take notice of it in the women particularly. Soon must we say, 'Farewell, ye golden tresses and violet orbs!' During centuries to come the dark people are destined to achieve and hold domination in the world, until, as is very likely, the cycle of complexion has gone around and the blond shall rule again."—Washington Star.

There's a queer state of things in Richmond, Mo., where a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been organized, but nobody will act as its agent.

The Gulf Stream.

The question is often asked, to what extent does the Gulf Stream modify the climate of the United States? To its supposed erratic movements is laid the blame of every abnormal season. There is every evidence that the Gulf Stream is governed absolutely by law in all its changes. The course through the ocean is without doubt fixed. Its fluctuations are by days, by months, by seasons or by years, and they do not vary materially one from the other. Its temperature changes, depending upon the relative heat of the tropical and polar seasons, and upon the strength of the producing trade winds. The warm water may be driven toward the shore by the waves caused by a favorable wind, but the current remains in its proper place. The warm water gives off a certain amount of heat to the air above it, and if this air is moved to the land we feel the heat.

The presence of the warm water on the coast of Europe would in no way modify the climate if the prevailing winds were easterly instead of westerly. If the prevailing winds in New England in winter were southeast instead of northwest, the climate would be equal to that of the Azore islands, mild and balmy. For the cause of abnormal seasons we may look to meteorology. The current is in its place ready to give off the heat and moisture to the air whenever the demand is made upon it, but by the erratic movements of the air this heat and moisture may be delivered at unexpected times and seasons, and thus give rise to the erroneous belief that the Gulf Stream itself has gone astray.—John E. Pillsbury in Century.

Reported Favorably.

Mr. Richard Rudgrave, the artist, records in his diary this amusing recommendation from an Irishman appointed to examine students competing for medals: "I should also recommend Margaret for a reward. Being very young she naturally missed the point of all the questions in the papers, but her answers were so ladylike that I think the medal should be given to her."—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Motion of Glaciers.

The motion of glaciers is yet a bone of contention, but it is generally admitted that the cause of it is to be found mainly in gravitation, and is also partially accounted for by the strange property of "viscosity" in what appears to the casual observer to be nothing more or less than a rigid solid.—Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"To one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me they were just as good; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other."

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." Mrs. ELLA A. GORE, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

The quotations for silver bullion in New York and London are the low at history, being 88 cents per ounce, 1,000 fine in New York and 40-116 pence per ounce, 925 fine in London. The value of the standard dollar is now about 69 cents in gold.

Clara Harrigan the girl assaulted by a negro at Visalia, California, is a native of Reno. Hon. Whitelaw Reid, United States Minister to France, sailed for home yesterday accompanied by his wife, who is a daughter of the millionaire D. O. Mills. They were given a farewell banquet by the American colony at Paris. Mr. Reid, it is understood, resigned for the purpose of being a candidate for Vice President of the United States, on the Harrison ticket.

The Central Nevada says David Norrie, the dividing rod man, went into the Black Rock country north of Humboldt House some months ago, in search of a gold mine said to have been discovered by the followers of Fremont. He claims to have discovered mineral on every hand and tellurium of gold in profusion. Men who have confidence in Norrie and his rod have gone to the Black Rock country.

A Journal reporter asked a dozen intelligent citizens yesterday what they thought of the Bebring sea controversy and the "modus vivendi," which has been the burden of telegraph news from Washington for two or three weeks, and each and all of them candidly admitted that they did not know a thing about it, but thought it meant the protection of seals, or something of that kind.

PARADISE DEMOCRATS.

They Are Out and Out for Free Coinage.
PARADISE VALLEY, Nevada, March 24th, 1902.

EDITOR STATE JOURNAL.—In a recent number of the New York Weekly World I noticed an article from Paradise, Nevada, signed B. F. Riley, in which he says:

"With the World as our guide and instructor and Cleveland as our Moses to lead the people out of the wilderness of corruption we can look forward to prosperity and contentment. Cleveland is the man that the country needs and the man that the people want and he will be our standard bearer if the will of the majority of the people prevails. The people demand Cleveland, and Cleveland we must have if we expect to win."

Had he said during the Cleveland and Harrison campaign that "with the New York Tribune for our guide and Judge Kelly of Pennsylvania as our Moses" he could not have been more inconsistent so far as the people of the silver producing States are concerned. No man in the same position could have done any more for Mr. Cleveland and the success of his tariff reform principles, when he was a candidate for the Presidency in 1888 than the writer of this article—but the whiff of time works great changes in both men and parties—and while we followed the lead of Cleveland in his great struggle his last letter announcing his views in opposition to the free coinage of silver sealed his doom with the great growing States of the Northwest, the cotton planters of the South and the silver producing States and Territories of the Pacific coast, and while our chief industry has suffered more from the announcement of his positive views in opposition to silver than any of the above mentioned States, yet the Democrats of said States are not without a Moses. When we think of such great men as Gorman of Maryland, Pattison of Pennsylvania, Campbell of Ohio, Gray of Indiana, Boies of Iowa, and Palmer of Illinois, we rejoice to know that we are not restricted to any one man; that we are still a free people and propose to be governed by the good old Jeffersonian doctrine of the people selecting the man.

When we think of the number of mining towns that have been deserted, the number of idle stamps that are hung up to rust, the machinery and buildings that are going to decay, the thousands of industrious miners that have been compelled to leave the State to seek employment elsewhere for the support of their families, and last but not least, a loss of a market for our product, which is so sorely felt in our beautiful valley right under the shadow of two of the best quartz mills and a half dozen of the best ore producing ledges in the State, all on account of the Sherman Act of 1873, there must be something wrong, or in other words, their must be a screw loose, when a resident of this State proposes to make the silver question a secondary issue in the coming campaign, let those who Democrats who are talking behind the tariff issue, with one eye on the silver question, the other on some office, take warning from that indefatigable old silver champion who is defending their rights in the House of Representatives, while they themselves are bartering away their rights to the gold bugs of the East, when every man of them should raise his voice in support of the man who has the courage of his convictions and dares to stand by his constituents regardless of a few Eastern monopolists. Let both Democrats and Republicans unite in calling a convention to send delegates to Chicago who will vote for no man unless he be in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

GEORGIA MINSTRELS.

Richard & Pringle's Famous Colored Stars.

The celebrated Georgia Minstrels are billed to appear at McKinick's Opera House, April 4th. The Portland Oregonian says: After having had two weeks of grand opera and four nights of drama, the managers of the Park Theater gave their patrons a change last evening in the shape of Richard & Pringle's famous colored minstrels. There was a large audience present, both auditorium and gallery being crowded. The performance given was excellent and the applause unstinted. Billy Kersands, the old-time favorite, fully sustained the reputation he made here before. The company has a very amusing first part, and a most laughable afterpiece, J. A. Watts has an excellent tenor voice, and sang "Only a Picture" in a pleasing manner. The Malloy Brothers were also very good. All the members of the company were good. The performance will be repeated to-night.

While a cordial invitation is extended to all, the members of the Church are specially requested to be present at the morning service.

The Central Nevada says the station house at Lewis Junction on the Nevada Central Railroad was burned last Sunday evening. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, possibly an Indian who was prohibited from taking fish over the road to Austin.

DEMOCRATIC DELEGATES.

Another member Who Favors a Convention.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—The talk and expenditure of ink in regard to the State Central Committee appointing the delegates to Chicago instead of calling a convention to elect them is in my opinion entirely uncalled for.

I have never heard of a member expressing such an intention. Certainly the Chairman of the Committee could have entertained no such idea, as his call expressly states that the meeting is for the purpose of designating the time and place for holding a State Convention.

There was never but once such a usurpation of power in the history of the Democratic party in this State, and that was in 1872, when the State Committee assumed the authority to appoint the delegates with instructions to cast the vote of the State for Horace Greely.

The Committee will undoubtedly call a convention, which will elect the delegates to Chicago. I believe, moreover, that the convention will select men who can be relied upon to act for the best interest of the State and party, and in such a manner as to insure its success next November, regardless of their own personal preference or interests in regard to candidates or campaign policy.

The only question that I have heard discussed, is the matter of one or two conventions, and this feeling appears to be nearly unanimous in favor of the first proposition. We have only candidates for Congress and Supreme Judge and an electoral ticket to nominate, and that can as well be done at the convention which elects the delegates as to incur the expense of a subsequent convention. This has always been done heretofore, and I can discern no good reason for departing from the precedent, as the conditions of the Nevada Democracy are in no way similar to those of the Republicans, which necessitated the pouring of oil upon the waters ruffled by the renomination of a distasteful candidate.

J. C. HAGERMAN,
Member of the Committee.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and promotes and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

Yesterday morning as the passenger train was standing here several lady passengers started out to take a look at our beautiful city and became so absorbed in the many pretty sights and interesting features of the town that they failed to notice how quickly time was passing until they saw the train pulling out. They all rushed for the cars, and during the struggle in getting on, one of the ladies stumbled on a tie and fell on her face in a dead faint. She was picked up by a brakeman and put on the moving train. It is not probable that the lady was seriously injured by the fall.

Henry B. Rule, Secretary and Collector for the Reno Water, Land & Light Co., has resigned his position and will engage in the business of fire and life insurance, having purchased the business of Mr. W. N. Knox. He will open an office in the Thompson building in the front part of Sessions' furniture factory. Mr. Rule has had considerable experience in the insurance business and will represent some of the largest and most reliable companies in the world.

Canine sagacity.

Mr. O. D. Everson of this place has a handsome dog that delights in the name of Bushwhacker, and from all accounts this same Bushwhacker possesses a wonderful amount of sagacity.

Mr. Everson's mother resides in Bryantville, about eight miles from this place, and a few weeks ago she was surprised to see Bushwhacker at the door whining to come in. Upon opening the door the dog began to bark and appeared to have something on his mind.

He was told to lie down, but although he had traveled so far, the dog evidently preferred to stand up, and not until a note was found under his collar did Bushwhacker manifest any desire to rest.

The place where the lady resides is quite a distance from the postoffice, so that the dog acts as letter carrier, making the trip of eight miles every day in the week.

Bushwhacker is a great dog for rabbits, but a whole army of the stubtailed rodents might cross his path when he is on the road with the mail and his attention would not be detracted from his work.

He is a faithful carrier, and if the return letter is not ready when he thinks it should be he will start without it, covering the distance from Bryantville to this town at a better rate of speed than the majority of horses.—Brocton Enterprise.

Two neighbors in Stamp Creek, Ga., had a dispute about a couple of geese, and the matter was brought to court. After the costs had amounted to seventy dollars, the disputants compromised the matter by each taking one of the fowls.

"August Flower"

Perhaps you do not believe these statements concerning Green's August Flower. Well, we can't make you. We can't force conviction into your head or medicine into your throat. We don't want to. The money is yours, and the misery is yours; and until you are willing to believe, and spend the one for the relief of the other, they will stay so. John H. Foster, 1122 Brown Street, Philadelphia, says: "My wife is a little Scotch woman, thirty years of age and of a naturally delicate disposition. For five or six years past she has been suffering from Dyspepsia. She became so bad at last that she could not sit down to a meal but she had to vomit it as soon as she had eaten it. Two bottles of your August Flower have cured her, after many doctors failed. She can now eat anything, and enjoy it; and as for Dyspepsia, she does not know that she ever had it."

SO IT IS TRUE

Here's a friend who says that sorrow comes down with battle round them. Here's a longshore who is moulting. Tell him death is far away! Let dull days go weep and pray. Heed not grief, the ghostly clere, groaning. Who would climb the second day!

Ah, they say that anguish found them. Men cut down with battle round them. (Hear the boys there gayly sing!) In some region far away! What care we who laugh today? Young boys, who're you're bringing honor to the second day!

What's that sound that cools our laughter? What's that form that follows after? Funeral music sadly sounded—One more man is turned to clay! Let dull days go weep and pray! Youth by death, was never confounded—Long shall shine our second day!

Oh, my dear one, to my weeping. Marble silence sternly keeping. Lying there in breathless blindness. Death is never far away. Let dull days go weep and pray! Lips that loved have lost their kindness. Dead are they this bitter day!—Rose Hawthorne Lathrop in Scribner's.

Returned the Papers.

A well known gentleman in this city moved into a house that had been previously occupied by another gentleman who was a subscriber to one of the evening papers. The carrier of course continued leaving the paper for a space of a year, never having been notified of the change. The collector recently went around to collect for the paper, the bill being made out in the name of the gentleman who had subscribed. When the collector presented the bill the gentleman of the house said:

"Why, my dear sir, that man has not lived here for over a year. You are at the wrong house."

"Well, has not the carrier been leaving you a copy of the paper all the time?"

"Yes, sir. But I did not subscribe and I told the boy to quit leaving it. But he never did so."

"You have received the paper every day, haven't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then you ought to pay for it."

"Well, excuse me a moment," and the gentleman went into the house. Re turning in a moment he lugged out a stack of newspapers half as tall as him self. "Here are your papers, sir; I have no use for them."

He had read them and carefully filed them away until the bill should be presented.

The collector sent a transfer wagon to haul away a year's accumulation of papers, the pay for which he failed to get, because one man returned them and the man never received them.—Chattanooga Times.

Not the Worst Girl in the World.

Professor Chapman, of Bowdoin college, told the following story at an alumni dinner: "I feel like the little daughter of a friend of mine in Portland. She had just mastered the art of expressing herself in intelligent sentences. One day she had done some thing for which her mamma had to re prove her. The lady gave her daughter a sound lecture and then told her to go up stairs, alone, in her room, and ask God to forgive her for her error. "In a few minutes she was surprised to see the baby come down stairs again, appear in the sitting room and stand back with a great deal of seriousness. "Well, did you go up and do what I told you?" asked the fond mother. "Yes," replied the guilty one, "and God said, 'Great Scott! Elsie Murray, I've known a great many worse girls than you.'"—Boston Herald.

A Four-Year-Old Philosopher.

Among the many anecdotes relating to the late Rev. Thomas Hill, D. D., is one told by himself. Dr. Hill and his wife awoke quite early one morning and regarded with interest a crib which contained a precocious child of less than four years. Presently the child turned her face up to the ceiling and solilo quized: "Oh, how much easier it is for a person to think than to act. Now with a dog it is right the other way."—Boston Traveller.

Not a Five Cent Loaf.

While treasurer of the Maine Central R. R. Linscott always made his own bank deposits, taking the immense amounts in bills wrapped in a newspaper under his arm as he rode up town on a street car. "Why does that old gentleman carry up that loaf of bread every day?" one occasion inquired the conductor. The value of the loaf of bread was probably not far from $30,000.—Lewiston Journal.

A Gentle Maiden.

Friend—So Miss Beaufort refused you? De Sappo—Yes, but she did it very gently. "Expressed sorrow, eh?"

"It amounted to that. While I was proposing she gently slipped out of the room and sent her mother in to talk to me about the weather."—Good News.

RED BLUFF, Sept. 25, 1901.

SIX weeks ago, when I first wrote you, I did not think it possible that such a wonderful change could be wrought in such a case as mine. I was a victim of Nervous Debility and Insomnia, caused by over-indulgence in sexual excess. I had been doctoring for months, and the best physicians on the coast pronounced me hopeless. I was losing weight rapidly, unable to sleep, and my mind was so weak that I could not do my work. I had gained more than 20 lbs. in six weeks. I can only say "God bless you."

W. W. WILSON

DEAR SIR:—Enclosed please find P. O. order for the balance due you. It is unnecessary to send another treatment, as I am entirely cured.

MISS NELLIE WILSON.

Mother says that I'm well, and I quite agree with her. My hearing is completely restored, the running noses in my right ear are also gone.

I have gained 16 pounds of weight in the two months of your treatment. My female ailments have been cured, and my mind is so clear that I can do my work. I have gained more than 20 lbs. in six weeks. I can only say "God bless you."

Stylographic Ink.

Not every one knows the difference between stylographic ink and ordinary black ink. The stylographic ink is standard, so that all the minute particles are found in ordinary ink are removed and it will flow freely through the point of the pen in which it is used. This process of straining also renders it valuable in households where careless people are likely to spill ink, and where children go away to school in white aprons, too often returning from their writing lessons ink begrimed. Stylographic ink will wash out without difficulty in clear cold water. It is the minute particles of matter in unstrained ink which become clogged in the fiber of cloth and which render a stain from it practically indelible.

There are a great many kinds of stylographic ink, but we believe they all possess this excellent quality of washing out if taken care of at once. Certainly the first bleaching will bring out all remnants of the stain in white goods.—New York Tribune.

A Revolutionary Landmark.

An old Revolutionary landmark that is fast crumbling away, and which for many years has attracted much attention, is the Unruh House, standing south of Oregon lane, and near the Winged-ducking creek, Germantown. It was used as a hospital for wounded soldiers after the battle of Germantown. The old building, which was built in 1793, was imported from Holland, have all disappeared, and the walls are only partially standing. The more modern structure, which was built adjoining about the commencement of this century, is still standing in a good state of preservation, and is at present occupied.—Philadelphia Record.
